As executive director of AGWM, Greg Mundis provides leadership for 2,708 AG missionaries and associates serving in 252 countries, territories and provinces.

While listening to a description of the spiritual needs in Austria, Mundis felt an overwhelming burden for the nation and its people. In response to God's call, the Mundises were appointed as missionaries to Austria and arrived in Salzburg in 1980.

In 1987, Mundis cofounded an international church, Vienna Christian Center, and served as pastor for four years. Mundis was named area director for Central Europe in 1991. When AGWM made the Europe region a distinct entity in 1998, Mundis was selected as its first regional director. For the next 13 years he developed strategies to increase ministries to the region's cities, campuses and children and helped raise awareness of the culturally diverse communities created by the swell of immigrants coming to the region. He also initiated greater communication among missionaries involved in similar ministries across Europe by providing opportunities for them to network and exchange ideas. In 2011, he was elected as AGWM executive director.
